BIOGRAPHY

Among Wolves are beautiful, yet destructive at times.

The Among Wolves story started in Philadelphia in the winter of 2001 with founder Billy Tiedeken, aka Haywood. Billy started recording experimental lo-fi folk songs with chaotic sonic textures. After moving to Baltimore in early 2004 he met up with an old friend, Jimmy Cahill, also from Philadelphia. Right away the two began writing and recording songs in a small Baltimore apartment on Saint Paul Street in the Charles Village neighborhood. Among Wolves was born.

Billy and Jimmy had the desire to create interesting but accessible music which pushed them to become more creative with sounds and production ideas. Using instruments like the theremin, short wave radios, old casio keyboards, toys, and synthesizers, the sound became more than just quiet lo-fi folk. In a span of about nine months they recorded over 70 songs and were getting a hundred plus plays a day on various websites.

This collaboration caught the attention of multi-instrumentalist/producer Jason Butcher and bassist/drummer Dave Godman. When their band, Chivalry, fell apart, the two joined Among Wolves. With this new addition, the band became the beast that it is today, providing "the perfect Grizzly Bear/Beach Boy/Beach House harmonies to start and end your days" (Butter Team).

The current lineup has been playing all over Baltimore and the East Coast for just about two years now. Among Wolves has gained a reputation for their energetic live shows and crowd participation.

After working at Wright Way Studios on and off for the past year, Among Wolves will be releasing its second full length record on The Beechfields Record Label in the late Fall/Winter of 2008.

"The music of Among Wolves is not what you might expect. This collection of tunes is accessible, digestible, and yet firmly to the left of anything you'd hope to find popping up in the mainstream (or the underground for that matter). Devilishly clever, you wonder if they were at that famous crossroad along with Robert Johnson making that deal too." (Smother)

For fans of The Beach Boys, Will Oldham, Neil Young, Guided by Voices, Gram Parsons, Flaming Lips, Townes Van Zandt.
